Sundried Tomatoes A little Piece of Italy in Every Bite

David Roberts sundried tomatoes are semi-dried, keeping some of the natural juices of the tomatoes intact and amplifying the flavour. In fact, it takes 44 kilograms of fresh ripe tomatoes to produce 1 kilogram of semidried tomatoes. They don't just taste great; they are convenient to use. David Roberts semi-dried tomatoes can go straight from the pantry to the recipe. There is no need to soak them in advance like other dried varieties. Just because our tomatoes are dried, it doesn't mean they are less nutritious than fresh tomatoes. Our semi-dried tomatoes have the same nutritional value as their fresh counterparts. They are high in Lycopene, Antioxidants and Vitamin C, and can be used in a variety of menu options including pizzas, salads, breads, sandwiches, quiches or soups. They also can be served on their own as appetizers. To save time and labour, you can choose either whole sundried tomatoes or sliced (julienne cut) sundried tomatoes which are approximately 3 to 4 cm in length and 1 cm in width.

Whole sundried tomatoes in oil are also available. This low-moisture version is perfect for pizza toppings and will not burn or blacken during cooking like plum tomatoes – regardless of whether you have a wood burning or standard pizza oven. Save time as they come already moist and tender. There is no need to soak them compared to other dry sundried tomatoes. A pre-sliced, julienne cut is also available to reduce preparation time. They have a consistent flavour each and every time – even when tomatoes are not in season.
